

IMAGEEN

DESCRIPTION

The Imageen project (International Maghreb-Europe Education Network), was born thanks to the Erasmus Mundus – External Cooperation Window programme financed by the European Commission. It brings together five European universities and nine universities from the Maghreb (please refer to the partner universities list at the back of this brochure). It allows students registered in one of these institutions to participate in an exchange with one of the partner universities, which is a member of the network (from the Maghreb to Europe and vice-versa). The duration and amount of the grants awarded vary depending on your level of study. Students registered in universities in the Maghreb which are not members of the network, as well as students in vulnerable situations, are also eligible to participate in the project.

PROJECT OBJECTIVES

Thanks to Imageen, you can benefit from an international experience recognised as part of the university diploma delivered by your home institution. The project objective is to train young men and women, highly qualified, open to the world and able to adapt to globalisation and to the new society of knowledge. Additionally, the aim of Imageen is to harmonise the university systems and to reinforce exchanges between Europe and the Maghreb in terms of higher education and scientific research as well as at a cultural and economic level.

APPLICATIONS

▶ APPLICATIONS WILL BE MADE THROUGH THE PROJECT WEBSITE:

www.imageen.org

Applicants are also invited to contact the international relations department at their university or the person in charge of this project (information is available on the project website). Your application will be assessed by a pre-selection committee in your home institution. The assessment will be based on the quality of your application and on its relevancy to the priorities defined by your home institution. Selected applications will then be sent to host universities for a final selection by a mixed committee. Successful applicants will be individually informed of the selection result.
